A sealed render validates that prose and code agree; it captures nothing new